BUMPS AND JINKS.

As our reporter was leaving the Legislative Hall a few afternoons ago, weary and worn after attempting to record the proceedings of the day, he came upon his two old acquaintances, Bumps and Jinks. It was a delightful relief. They sat down in the shade, smoking their pipes and recounting their experiences. Seating himself by them, they continued their conversation.

It seems they had been spending the afternoon listening to the proceedings in the House.

"Look here Bumps," said Jinks, "I didn't seem to recognize most of the fellows in there. They have shipped a new crew since I was here last, haven't they?"

"Yes," replied Jinks, "they've new officers and almost an entire new set forward. From first mate to cabin boy they are mostly all new hands."

"Waah, now, I dew declare!" said Jinks. "I thot I didn't recomember them. I look'd over to where the four parsons sat, and somehow they didn't seem to look just like the old officers. Who was the fine pious looking gentleman sitting next to the door? He seemed so comfortable and rested like that it did me good."

"Oh, that was Cummins, the first mate; they call him 'Primer,' I don't know why 'zactly, but a feller told me that the Natural Deform party would learn some lessons from him if they went too far."

"And who was the next one with the long beard, and smiles so sweet?
He looks pretty good."

"That was Spencer. He has charge of the Internal Apartment.
He hasn't been there long, but they say he has got lots of good sense, and tho' he don't like ter hurt anny body's feelin's he'll stand up straight when it comes ter the scratch."

"And the next one, dressed so neat, and his face and forehead shaved so smooth?"

"Oh, that was Brown. He's paymaster. They call him Minister of Fine Aunts, and do yer know they say his aunts is a fine lot. He's a pretty nice kind of a feller, but if they crowd him he git's as sarcastic as the back end of er yellow-yacket.
He's a brother ter the young lawyer feller who was 'lected from Colaupoker when you was here before."

"And the last one? He doesn't seem to measure as large outside as some of 'em. But yer can't always tell about them small craft, they sometimes outsize the big one."

"That's so," Jinks. "His name is Peterson, and he's a mighty trim little craft. You know the best things is generally put up in small packages."

"But I say, Bumps," said Jinks,
"who do you mean by the 'Natural Deform' party? I didn't seem to notice him, who does he look like?"

"Oh," Jinks, "he isn't a feller; it's a lot of fellers. Don't you remember the Mechanics' Union and the Hewey Carolina that I told you about just before you sailed last time? Well, they joined together and made a Natural Deformed party. There's lots of good men among them and lots that isn't good.
You know when one of a feller's legs is good and one is crooked, or he's so crossed eyed that he walks in the opposition direction when he wants to get anywhere, or tries to walk both ways at once, they call him deformed."

"Well, this here party is something like that. Some of them thinks one thing and says another and does something else. Some of their legs is short and some is long.
Some mean what they says and some doesn't. Some is good and some wants to be but can't, and some doesn't want to be. And some mean to be good and others don't want 'em to be."

"Oh! I begin to understand, Bumps. But what did that feller mean about the Primer teaching some of them?"

"Why, you see he knows he's got a valuable cargo and fine ship in his charge, an' he's not agoin' to let any of them run her aground. When he's got an open sea on one side and a unsafe passage full of shoals on the other, he's not agoin' to risk losing his ship for anybody."

"This here Highway country is like a ship at sea with a valuable cargo, and a mixed crew aboard pulling and hauling in different directions, and all hands trying to give orders; a good deal depends on the officers; if they doesn't control the thing mighty careful it will never git to port."

"But, Bumps, what is all this I heard a feller sayin' about a Consternational Invention, or something of that sort?"

"A what? Oh, I know what you mean, the Constitutional Convention.
Well, it's a long story, and I'll tell you another time, its late now and I must be goin'."

So they departed.

The publishers of the New Hawaiian Guide Book received orders for the Australia from the San Francisco and New York news companies, for fifteen hundred copies, to be sent as soon as possible. The book appears to be just what is sought for by tourists and others abroad.

THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

Fifty-seventh Day.

MONDAY, August 18.

House met at 10 A. M. Prayer by Chaplain. Minutes of preceding day read and approved.

Rep. Kahookano presented a petition from Kohala with 114 signatures that the law to call a constitutional convention be rejected. Laid on the table to be considered with the bill.

Rep. Bush presented a petition from Waikiki that road up Round Top be opened. Referred to the Minister of the Interior.

Rep. Waipulani presents the majority report of the committee on the bill restricting native Hawaiians in going abroad. The majority recommend that the bill be indefinitely postponed. They think the bill is unnecessary and contrary to the rights to which native Hawaiians are entitled under the law. The minority recommend the passage of the bill.

Noble Pua moved the reports be laid on the table with the bill.

Rep. Rice moved to adopt the majority report.

The first motion carried.

Noble Muller read by title an Act to provide police justices for all districts of the Hawaiian Kingdom.

Noble Phillips read the constitutional amendment of which he had given notice, giving the Legislature special authority to deal with the Chinese question.
Under suspension of the rules the bill was read a second time by title.

Rep. Kalua moved the bill be referred to a special committee to be called Committee on Constitutional Amendments to which everything of the sort could be referred.

Noble Marsden moved it be a committee of nine, two from each island and one from Molokai.

Rep. Kalua accepted the amendment.
The motion was amended carried.

Noble Phillips read the bill to amend the Constitution by reducing the property and income qualification of voters from Nobles from $3,000 to $1,500 and from $600 to $300.

The bill was read a second time by title and referred to the same committee.

Rep. Kalua read by title a bill to authorize the manufacture of opium, liquor and tobacco.

The bill was read a second time by title and referred to the Opium Committee.

Noble W. Y. Horner—Whereas this Government is paying out large sums for salaries; and whereas the time of labor of Government clerks is very short; resolved that a special committee be appointed to investigate the matter and report at an early date by bill or otherwise.

The introducer moved the resolution be adopted. Carried.

Noble Phillips gave notice of a bill regulating the fees of jurymen.

Rep. Apiki gave notice of an Act to amend Articles 31, 48 and 63 of the Constitution.

Rep. Robt. Wilcox under suspension of the rules presented a petition which he had just received praying that a constitutional convention be called.

Noble J. M. Horner presented a petition representing that the building of the railway on Oahu had been of great benefit to Hawaiians and others in furnishing employment, increasing the value of lands, etc., and praying that the two railroad bills pass.

The petition which was about six feet long was laid on the table with the bills.

Rep. Bush reports for the committee which was appointed to reply to His Majesty's message, presenting a proposed draft of reply. The reply confines itself to assuring His Majesty that the message will receive careful consideration.

Noble J. M. Horner moved the proposed answer be considered to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Noble Widemann amended by making it to-day.

Rep. Kapahaele could not see that there was much to be considered. The committee make no promises and simply say this House will consider the matter. I move the adoption of the report.

Noble Baldwin thought it could be acted on at once. It contained nothing but a statement that the matter would be considered.

posed to this bill. I am ready to ask for its passage, but I think the Attorney-General's point is very well taken indeed.
There is no harm in giving all the district magistrates police powers.

Noble Marsden withdrew his motion.
Rep. R. Wilcox was in favor of the Attorney-General's motion. The committee should report as to what districts should have police magistrates, and which not.

Minister Peterson said that was the object of referring to a committee. He was in favor of a police court in Hamakua. There were some districts which should have police courts, and some not.
If we pass them one by one we shall have to pass them all on the basis of "Scratch my back and I'll scratch yours."

Rep. Waipulani said that Noble Muller's bill was brought in not to benefit the country but merely to stop a nuisance.

Noble Baldwin thought the bill should be referred to committee with the objects already specified. The idea was a good one. There need be no fear that Hamakua would not be made a police district.

Noble Marsden thought it would do no harm to pass the bill now. It was engrossed and the House was wasting a great deal of time. He moved the bill pass now.

Noble McCarthy—I am opposed to referring the bill to a committee. If the matter goes to a committee, a great many members will want to have police magistrates who don't think of it now.
Each bill can be considered on its merits.

The bill was referred to a select committee.

The bills providing police justices for Molokai, Kau and Lana were referred to the same committee.

Consideration of the Appropriation Bill in Committee of the Whole; Noble McCarthy in the chair.

Addition to Insane Asylum, $15,000.
Rep. Kapahaele moved the item be referred to a select committee.

Minister Spencer gave the items, amounting to $19,500. It had been cut down to $15,000, which the Minister thought would be sufficient.

The item passed.

New wharf, Hilo, $20,000.
Noble Marsden moved it be deferred until the Hilo Railroad Bill had been considered. He had heard it said that the railroad might build the wharf.

Rep. Nawahi was in favor of passing the item now. The railroad bill might not pass, and if it did it might be years before the wharf was built. It might not be within the lifetime of any one person.

Noble Marsden—It won't
